WMNS C290/2 WOMEN'S IDENTITY AND IMAGE: HISTORIC APPROACHES

(3 credits)

TAUGHT BY: T.B.A., SGW Campus,
Mondays, 18:05-20:10

TAUGHT BY: T.B.A., Loyola Campus,
T/Th., 11:45-13:00

PREREQUISITE: None.

TYPE OF COURSE: Normally a required course for student members of the Simone de Beauvoir Institute; compulsory for students minoring or majoring in Women's Studies.

CONTENT: Women's Studies, because of its emerging yet rapidly developing nature, both affects and transcends pre-existing disciplines. On the one hand, this course will show, in a historical context, how, by the use of new developments in various disciplines, fresh light can be shed on traditional assumptions. On the other, it will study not only the "mirror image" of women as found in certain male writings but also the images women have projected of themselves and the reasons underlying those projections.

TEACHING METHODOLOGY: This course is developed and taught although not simultaneously, by two instructors from different disciplines, each of whom will conduct classes in her fields of competence. The format will include lectures and group discussions.

EVALUATION: Assignments will include both written and oral presentations. Students are expected to take part in any class discussions.

SELECTED BIBLIOGRAPHY:

These will include primary and secondary sources. Students may obtain the reading list in advance from the Simone de Beauvoir Institute, 2170 Bishop St. for the SGW Campus, 7079 Terrebonne for the Loyola Campus.

Readings in feminist journals such as Atlantis and Room of One's Own are important aids to the development of a methodology.

PREREQUISITE: Cinema C211 or second year standing, less than 66 credits remaining in degree programme.

TYPE OF COURSE: Elective.

CLAS C254/3 WOMEN IN CLASSICAL
ANTIQUITY

(3 credits)

TAUGHT BY: Dr. L. Sanders, Loyola
Campus, W/F, 10:15-11:30

TYPE OF COURSE: Elective

PREREQUISITE: None

CONTENT: An examination of the social status and political influence of women in ancient Greece and Rome. Particular emphasis will be placed upon the apparent contradiction between the seemingly inferior position occupied by women in fifth century Athens and the general enlightenment that characterized the epoch. Within this context the influence of war upon the struggle for feminine emancipation, as seen through the eyes of tragedies, comic writers, philosophers and historians, will be considered. Roman women will be viewed with particular reference to the question: to what extent the essentially hostile scandalmongering of the source is reflective of veracity of fact of an essentially non-liberal environment.

ECON C397/4 ECONOMICS OF DISCRIMINATION

(3 credits)

TAUGHT BY: Morton Stelcner, SGW Campus,
Thursdays, 18:05-20:10

PREREQUISITE: ECON 201 and 203

TYPE OF COURSE: Elective

CONTENT: The general objective of the course is to examine and review the contributions of economics to an understanding of the causes and effects of discrimination against women. Consideration is also given to the role of women in the economy. Particular emphasis is given to the Canadian and Québec experience.

The basic (normative) premise of the course is that sex discrimination is morally unjust. However, it is also important to ascertain (i) the degree and forms in which sex discrimination exists; (ii) its economic effects; (iii) the implications of policy measures to eliminate sex discrimination.

To accomplish these tasks, this course will examine different economic theories of sex discrimination including neo-classical approaches as well as those of radical economics. Also, various empirical studies of sex discrimination are reviewed. Finally, the economic implication of various policy measures will be discussed.

It is assumed that students have a good working knowledge of basic economic analysis which is covered in an introductory economics course.

EVALUATION: There will be two tests, one term paper, and a possible class presentation.

Wednesdays, 11:45-14:35

PREREQUISITE: None

ENGL C249/2 WOMEN IN LITERATURE I (3 credits)

TAUGHT BY: Kathy Waters, Loyola Campus,
M/W, 13:15-14:30 and SGW Campus,
Saturdays, 11:25-13:30

CONTENT: Through novels, short stories, poems and plays, the images, roles and experiences of women will be studied in Women in Literature I and II. Particular emphasis will be placed on the evolution of these images, roles and experiences in the nineteenth and twentieth centuries, in relation to social, intellectual and literary developments. Areas studied will include the young woman, growing up female, and women's education; female sexuality; the mother, maternity and the mother-daughter relationship, the wife and marriage; the single woman; the older woman; woman as artist and worker outside the home.

Although there will be representative work by male authors whose literary depiction of women has been influential (such as Ibsen and D.H. Lawrence), the focus will be on women selected from, among others, Jane Austen, Charlotte Bronte, George Eliot, Emily Dickinson, Kate Chopin, Virginia Woolf, Jean Rhys, Doris Lessing, Sylvia Plath, Dorothy Livesay, Margaret Laurence, Adrienne Rich, Alice Munro, Joyce Carol Oates, Margaret Atwood. The question of whether and to what degree a female literary tradition exists (i.e., in use of conventions, imagery, myth, form, etc.) will be considered, as will the relationship between critical ideology and literary evaluation.

ENGL C250/4 WOMEN IN LITERATURE II

ENGL C251/2 SELECTED TOPICS IN LITERATURE WRITTEN
BY WOMEN I

(3 credits)

TAUGHT BY: Roslyn Belkin, SGW Campus,
Wednesdays, 16:05-17:55 - SPECIAL TOPIC:
THE VOICE OF WOMEN IN 19TH CENTURY FICTION

- - - - -

TAUGHT BY: Kathy Waters, Loyola Campus,
Wednesdays, 16:05-17:55

CONTENT: This course explores the way in which women have employed conventions of such literary genres as poetry, the novel, and the drama to define their own lives and those of their contemporaries. The emphasis will be on literary analysis of the works; the course will also deal with the social and historical circumstances which are relevant to the works in question. The texts studied, the themes and concepts pursued, will vary from year to year.

ENGL C252/4 SELECTED TOPICS IN
LITERATURE WRITTEN
BY WOMEN II

SPECIAL TOPIC: THE VOICE OF WOMEN
IN 20TH CENTURY FICTION
(3 credits)

TAUGHT BY: Roslyn Belkin, SGW Campus,
Wednesdays, 16:05-17:55

PREREQUISITE: None

TYPE OF COURSE: Elective

CONTENT: Since a three credit course on 20th century women writers must, of necessity, be restricted to a representative sample, the reading list below is unified by several major themes. Most of the works to be studied have as their protagonists women writers or artists. Another recurring theme is that of relationships between mothers and daughters (an important contrast to the father-and-son or mother-and-son emphasis which informs so many major works of literature). Also, since the major characters in these works are all women, the traditional literary quest for meaning focusses on the particular question: "What does this woman's life mean?"

TEACHING METHODOLOGY: Lecture format.

SELECTED BIBLIOGRAPHY:

Margaret Atwood. Lady Oracle.
Margaret Laurence. The Diviners.
Doris Lessing. A Man and Two Women.
Tillie Olson. Tell Me a Riddle.
Adele Wiseman. Crackpot.
Virginia Woolf. To the Lighthouse.

ENGL C252/4 - Continued

TAUGHT BY: Kathy Waters, Loyola Campus,

Wednesdays, 16:05-17:55

NOTE: A student repeating ENGL C251 for credits will register under ENGL C252.

WOMEN'S STUDIES

ANTH C397/3 STATUS OF WOMEN IN
CROSS-CULTURAL PERSPEC-TIVE: PART I

(3 credits)

TAUGHT BY: T.B.A., SGW Campus,
Tuesdays, 20:25-22:50

PREREQUISITE: Anthropology 211 (Introduction) or equivalent, or permission of
the instructor.

CONTENT: This course is designed to study the status of women cross-culturally. It focuses on hunting, as well as horticultural peoples in areas such as native North and South America, Africa, Australia and Asia which may correspond to early forms of social life. We will ascertain whether among these societies there are some, unlike our own, in which women are publically recognized as equal to or more powerful than men. We will discuss how the differences in status may be explained and what are the implications in the present search for equal social status for men and women.

EVALUATION: Students are expected to attend class meetings regularly, to keep up with reading assignments, and to take part in class discussions. Evaluations will likely be based upon in-class presentations or other forms of assessment such as take-home assignments or term papers.

ANTH C398/4 STATUS OF WOMEN IN
CROSS-CULTURAL PERSPEC-TIVE: PART II

(3 credits)

TAUGHT BY: T.B.A., SGW Campus,
Tuesdays, 20:25-22:30

PREREQUISITE: Anthropology 211 (Introduction) or equivalent, or permission of
the instructor.

CONTENT: After a brief exposé on hunting and horticultural peoples, this course gives detailed information on what has been the status of women in traditional agricultural and pastoral societies.
Case studies from areas such as Africa,
Asia, the Middle East, Old Europe and Latin America are used. The first aim of the course is to ascertain whether the status of women in such societies has been different from the status of women in hunting and gathering societies on the one hand, and industrial societies on the other hand. Its second aim is to examine what happens to the position of women
when traditional agricultural and patriarchal societies are industrialized, whether following a capitalist model or a socialist one. The conclusion offers an analysis of the adequacies and inadequacies of current development policies in fostering equality of social status
between men and women.

EVALUATION: Students are expected to attend class meetings regularly, to keep up with reading assignments, and to take part in class discussions. Evaluation will likely be based upon in-class examinations or other forms of assessment
such as take-home assignment or term papers.
